Fire Suppression Rating Schedule
Guide for Determination of Earthquake Classifications

INFORMATION The Fire Suppression Rating Schedule (FSRS) is used by Insurance Services Office, Inc., (ISO) to objectively review and correlate those features of public fire protection that have a significant effect on minimizing fire damage at commercial and residential properties. The FSRS produces ten different public protection classifications, defining different levels of public fire suppression capabilities, which are reflected in individual property fire insurance relativities.

The Guide for Determination of Earthquake Classifications is used by ISO to provide additional analysis when specific earthquake classification verification is requested for commercial properties.
